

LEEAT YARIV

Leeat Yariv is Associate Professor of Economics at Caltech. Previous she has held positions at Yale University, and UCLA. She received her PhD in Economics from Harvard University, and undergraduate degrees in Mathematics and Physics from Tel-Aviv University. Her research interests are in game theory, political economy, psychology and economics. While most of her work thus far has been theoretical in nature, Yariv recently started utilizing experimental methodology and is pursuing a new research agenda on political science experimentation, including the development of jVote for running large web-based voting experiments. Her research has been published in leading journals of economics and political science, including Econometrica, the American Economic Review, the Review of Economic Studies, and the Journal of Economic Theory.